

LAI A TRAP

HIS WIFE WALKED INTO IT.

SEEKING FOR A DIVORCE.

An Atlanta Sensation that May Come to Light in a Few Days.

The Moon Telegraph publishes the following special from the Gate City:

The epic particulars of a society lady that has been much talked about...

One of the young men in the story is a tall blonde, not yet old enough to be a father.

The other young man is the son of one of the highest salaried traveling salesmen making Atlanta headquarters.

In this instance, however, the young man in question became involved with a young woman, who had been more or less talked about, but whom society had not directly tabooed.

The young man and the little brunette were married quite suddenly two weeks ago. The announcement was a great surprise.

It is said some of the things said about the bride, but expressed a will to take her into the circle provided she was really worthy of the position and the son had no hesitations upon her.

She never took up residence with her father and mother-in-law, however, which is one of the points in the story.

The young man's family set about to write a divorce. It appears that the young man himself repented bitterly of his hasty marriage.

He separated from his bride after a few days, and as developments demonstrated, joined his family in the resolution to secure a divorce.

This is where the young man mentioned comes in—the tall blonde son of the Whitehall street merchant. The reputed bridegroom, who had divided his time with the merchant's son in attending the young lady, undertook to see that she was a co-respondent in his suit.

Encouraged to have him pay a call to the bride, knowing that there were good chances that the interview would end in a compromising turn before it was over.

A FEAT TRAP. The merchant's son called as expected, and must have enjoyed part of the evening at least, for when the newly made husband suddenly appeared upon the scene he surprised his wife with a white arm thrown carelessly about her neck.

Of course there was a tableaux scene for effect by the divorcing husband. When he left the scene, however, chucked to him the thought he had a 'lead pipe' in his case, so to speak.

It is said that the bill for divorce was once drawn up and ready to file, but the merchant's son caught on to the trap and for him, and, with his assistance, raised such a row that the papers were destroyed. The Whitehall street merchant himself has taken a hand in the case, and has given notice that he will make it very hot for somebody if his son is drawn into the case.

THE FUNERAL SERVICES

John H. Bailey at East Athens Methodist Church.

Yesterday morning at 10 o'clock a large congregation assembled at the East Athens Methodist church to pay tribute to the late John H. Bailey.

Before leaving the home a very touching scene was presented. The wife was so afflicted as to be unable to attend the funeral services at the church, and Mr. England held a short service at the home, after which, amid sobs and wails of sorrow, she took the last look at her departed companion.

The church the Scripture lessons were read by Rev. D. C. O'iver, who preached in prayer. The singing of the hymns before and after prayer were especially beautiful. Rev. S. R. England preached a sermon full of thoughtful thoughts and touching pictures in which he painted in loving and beautiful words the life of an humble and unassuming Christian. Rev. E. D. O'iver followed Mr. England in a few words on the character of the deceased, which was a sweet recessional service was sung in an impressive manner when the funeral cortege slowly moved its way to Oconee cemetery.

A BIG FACTORY.

THAT IS WHAT MAY BE BUILT IN ATHENS

IN THE NEAR FUTURE.

The Movement will be Started and Will be Pushed Forward With Energy.

A BANNER reporter was talking yesterday with one of the leading manufacturers of the city, and from him gathered some ideas that may be of interest to the people.

Said he: "I have watched with interest the work of the BANNER, and of private citizens in behalf of small industries, and in my humble way have done all I could to secure them. Now I think the time has come to do something in earnest."

"I have a plan which I think would work well in Athens. Our cotton factories are all working well, and making money, and are in a prosperous condition. Athens needs another large cotton factory, and an industry of that kind would pay well here."

"I am sure that one or two hundred thousand dollars capital can be raised in Athens and the adjacent country to start a mammoth factory in our midst that would give employment to hundreds of hands and thus benefit the community greatly."

"You see the hundreds yielded to stockholders would not represent all the profits or benefits derived from the institution. The population would be increased. That would mean more houses rented, more grocery stores patronized; more dry goods bought, more business in every department of trade, and in short a general prosperity."

"I am so thoroughly convinced of the successful nature of the matter, if once undertaken that I would subscribe two thousand dollars to start with, although I am a man of moderate means. I am satisfied that others are thinking along this same line, and would not be surprised if a movement in that direction started in a short while. Athens must step forward in the matter of manufacturing interests and this is a very effective way to do it."

The reporter talked with several other citizens who were of the like opinion, and it may be that the movement will crystallize in a few days.

ON RECORD. Capt. Welch Talks to a Reporter on the Bridge Question.

Captain Welch, the alderman from the third ward and also one of the committee appointed to award the contract for building the bridge over the Oconee at the check factory, was met by a reporter of the BANNER and asked how came them to give the contract to King, the bridge builder, when the Watson Bros. had bid $125,000 under King's bid.

Captain Welch said in regard to the meeting of the committee to award the contract for the new bridge, as announced in Wednesday's BANNER that he had no notice of said meeting—was not present and had nothing to do with the award. The first notice he had of the action of the committee was the notice of the contract awarded to King that appeared in the BANNER.

Captain Welch said he had nothing to do with the award, and that he has never seen the bids and doesn't know who the bidders were.

FROM A BUGGY. Aleck Winfrey Jumps, Braaking His Leg. Yesterday afternoon a negro man named Alex Winfrey was driving down the hill near the old Carr property in East Athens where his mule became frightened and ran away.

A PHYSICIAN TALKS.

THE REMARKABLE STORY AND AFFIDAVIT OF DR. LEWIS BLUNDIN

Afflicted with Paralysis for Twenty-Six Years—Pronounced Incurable by the Foremost Physicians of the World—A Case of World Wide Interest.

(From the Philadelphia Times.) Many survivors of our late war left the ranks unwounded but with broken constitutions; an instance in point is Lewis D. Blundin, a resident of Halmesville, Bucks Co., Pa. After a long and arduous career, which he had suffered in consequence of the hardships he had encountered, Mr. Blundin said:

"I was born at Bridgeport, Penna., in 1841, and went through the war as private sergeant and hospital steward in Company C, 28th Pennsylvania Volunteers. My service was active and while in Georgia I had an attack of gonorrhea, which left me weak and a ready victim for future disease. My kidneys were then affected and this finally developed into spinal trouble, which lasted through my army service. In 1866 I was mustered out with an honorable discharge, and entered the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia as a student. I graduated two years later with a diploma but did not practice. At that time I was living in Manayunk. One day, after I had been lying on a sofa at my home in Manayunk, I felt a cold sensation in my lower limbs as though the blood had suddenly left them. When I tried to move them I was horrified at the discovery that I was paralyzed from my hips to my toes. The paralysis was complete and a pin or a pin of any kind caused no pain. I could not move a muscle. I called in Dr. William C. Todd of Philadelphia. He made a careful and exhaustive examination of my case, and after testing and finally announcing that my trouble was caused by inflammation of the spinal cord, and that I would likely have another stroke of paralysis. I consulted Dr. Lewis Gross and Dr. Pancoast of Jefferson College, Philadelphia, with the same result. I called in Dr. Morehouse, of Philadelphia, who said that no amount of medicine would ever prove of the slightest benefit to me.

One day last September I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I sent for one box. I had always been troubled with a sense of vertigo after my first stroke of paralysis, to such an extent that when I got out of my bed my head would swim and I had difficulty in leaving myself from falling. My appetite was bad, my digestive organs ruined, and no assimilation of food. In addition to my many other ailments, rheumatism held a prominent place. By the time I had finished the first box of Pink Pills I was comparatively free from these ailments. My appetite returned, the digestive organs began to do their daily grind, and the rheumatism disappeared. I was so encouraged that I immediately sent for half a dozen boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Relief followed upon relief, with astonishing rapidity. First one ailment would disappear, then another until the pills got to work upon the foundation stones of my trouble—paralysis. I felt a sense of exhilaration and the general effect was beneficial, becoming more so each day. Noting this fact, I increased the dose from one to two pills each each for a few days. By the time I had taken the six boxes of pills, I was sitting in my chair one afternoon, when I felt a curious sensation in my left foot. Upon investigation, I found it had flexed, or, in other words, become movable, and I could move it. From that time on my improvement was steady and it was not long before I was walking around on crutches with little or no discomfort. It was three years before taking the Pink Pills that I had been able to use the crutches at all. My health is daily improving, and I feel sure that Pink Pills have done me more good than all the doctors and all the medicine in the country and as they are not costly, I can easily afford the treatment. My friends tell of another remarkable case effected by the use of Pink Pills. One of his comrades in the army was Lewis J. Allen, of Battle Creek, Michigan, who has been a sufferer from rheumatism nearly all his life. Mr. Allen is a grandson of Ethan Allen of Revolutionary fame. "I know," said Mr. Blundin, "that Mr. Allen could not lift his arms to his head, or even his hands to his mouth, because of chronic rheumatism. He read in a Detroit paper of a wonderful cure made by Pink Pills and bought a box. His cure was sudden and complete. Knowing that I was a sufferer from rheumatism, along with my other ills, he wrote me about his recovery and advised me to try them. I was then using them. He said he had perfect control of his arms and hands, and could use them freely without experiencing any pain. He added that as a cure for rheumatism the Pills were the most complete in the world. My case alone proves that, for I am confident that my greatly benefited condition is due solely to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

IMPRESSIVE

WERE THE CEREMONIES YES—TERDAY AFTERNOON

WHEN THE CORNER STONE

Of the Samuel T. Lane Chapel Was Laid—Judge Howell Cobb's Beautiful Address.

Yesterday afternoon at four o'clock a very large company assembled in front of the Samuel Lane chapel on River street.

The exercises were opened by singing the hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name." The singing was led by Mr. W. F. Baxter, after which a fervent prayer was offered by Dr. C. W. Lane.

Mr. C. A. Rowland then announced that Miss Emily Witherspoon had prepared a history of the school, which was read by Mr. W. F. Baxter. It was a very interesting paper.

Mr. Rowland then introduced Judge Howell Cobb, who gave a most charming address. It was so beautiful, so tender, and so pathetic that many eyes were dimmed with tears as he spoke of the beautiful life of Mr. S. T. Lane, and how the venerable father, like Abraham Lincoln, had placed on God's altar that son which, according to human hopes, would have been the stay and comfort of his old age.

The speaker showed that like "my memories the fragrance of the lives and works of the father—and son would be a heritage, not only to the Presbyterian family, but likewise to all the Christians and churches of the city. In beautiful language he showed the reward of the venerable pastor when united with his glorified son in the heavenly world. Though brief, Judge Cobb's address was peculiarly appropriate and touchingly eloquent.

At the close of the address of Judge Cobb, Rev. Henry Newton offered up prayer, after which the hymn, "Bringing in the Sheaves," was sung.

Then Mr. Rowland announced that the Masonic ceremonies would rightfully come in, but he read a letter which explained that Classic City Lodge had failed to receive a dispensation from the Grand Lodge, and therefore it could not perform the duty assigned in the programme.

Mr. Rowland announced various articles contributed to be placed in the corner stone. First was the history of the school by Miss Emily Witherspoon, and also a map of that part of the city where the chapel is located. A copy of the Athens Banner containing a programme of the exercises of laying the corner was put, then a list of the contributors, and then the names of the officers and pupils of the Sunday school. A number of coins and one old continental bill were contributed by various parties; and finally, as a growing contribution, a photograph of the likeness of Mr. S. T. Lane was placed in the box, when it was closed up.

After singing the Long Metre, doxology, Dr. Lane pronounced the benediction, and these beautiful and impressive services came to an end, and the congregation dispersed with the benediction which this chapel might be an instrument in the hands of God in accomplishing great good.
